3. Client Disclosures:

I have discussed with my Advisor the distribution or roll out of assets held in an employer-sponsored retirement plan (Plan), the transfer of those assets to an IRA, and/or the engagement of the financial professional to provide me with advisory services with respect to an IRA account. It is important to understand the following information when considering a roll out of assets from a Plan.

- The financial professional provided education only regarding the transfer or roll out of the Plan and did not recommend one option over another.
  - If I am terminating or have terminated from the employer sponsoring the Plan, I understand that I have distribution options with respect to the Plan, including that I may:
    - Remain invested in the Plan (if applicable);
    - Transfer my Plan assets to a plan of a new employer (if applicable);
    - Roll my Plan assets to an IRA with a financial institution; or
    - Take a taxable distribution from the Plan.
- If I roll my assets out of the Plan into an IRA and engage a financial professional to provide services with respect to my account, I will likely pay more in investment costs than I did when the assets were in the Plan, depending on the investments and services I select for my IRA. The financial professional will generally receive more compensation for the services to my IRA account than he/she would have if I selected a different option for my Plan assets.
- Before deciding to open an IRA and engage a financial professional, I carefully reviewed all client account agreements and account disclosure forms regarding the IRA and related services, including the pros and cons of rollovers included in the IRA adoption agreement.
